Mechanical Insulation Industry Showcase

October 25, 2011, 11:00 a.m. – 2:00 p.m.

Rayburn House Office Building Foyer, First Floor Independence Avenue Entrance

Sponsored by Manufacturing Caucus Co-Chairs
Rep. Don Manzullo (R-IL) and Rep. Tim Ryan (D-OH)

On September 8, Reps. Don Manzullo (R-IL) and Tim Ryan (D-OH), along with Senators Kirsten Gillibrand (D-NY) and Mike Johanns (R-NE), introduced the Mechanical Insulation Installation Incentive Act (H.R. 2866/S. 1526) on Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C. This bipartisan, bicameral legislation would cut energy costs, reduce carbon emissions, and put Americans back to work through a tax incentive encouraging the use of mechanical insulation.

Join us on October 25 to learn more about the value of mechanical insulation and how these bills can save energy and money and create jobs for Americans. At this event, you will have the opportunity to:

- Examine samples of mechanical insulation products and learn more about the systems and the facilities, schools, hospitals, multi-family buildings, and manufacturing plants that benefit from this proven energy-saving technology.
- Find out how thinking about mechanical insulation differently could immediately create and preserve tens of thousands of career jobs.
- Learn how going beyond minimum levels and proper maintenance of mechanical insulation in commercial and manufacturing facilities can save energy, resulting in reduced greenhouse gases and energy costs.
- View a demonstration of newly created, free simple online calculators that allow you to easily determine the energy savings, emission reduction, and return on investment available through the use of mechanical insulation.

For questions or to RSVP, contact Elaine Wilson from Rep. Manzullo's office at elaine.wilson@mail.house.gov or Neville Welch from Rep. Ryan's office at neville.welch@mail.house.gov.
